

Flood Recovery Fund goes nationwide

It seems the entire country is keen to help Cumbria get back on its feet after the floods.

Cumbria Community Foundation, which set up the Cumbria Flood Recovery Fund the morning after the floods hit, has received donations from as far a field as the Isle of Wight, Cornwall.....and even New York!

The total now tops an incredible £600,000.

Other Community Foundations across the UK have kindly offered to accept donations on behalf the Cumbria Foundation.

Cumbria Community Foundation's acting director, Deb Muscat, said: "The fact that people from so far away want to help out is incredibly heartening. It just shows that people really do pull together in hard times. The fund continues to grow and donations from kind individuals and businesses mean we will be able to help people get their lives back on track sooner rather than later."
